

*Undergraduate Final Project
Science of Law Study Department
Odd Semester 2019*

EFFECTIVENESS OF PERMA No. 1 OF 2016 CONCERNING MEDIATION PROCEDURES IN THE COURT (Study of Mediation Cases of Divorce in Tanjung Balai Karimun Religious Court)

Siti Rugaya

NPM: 1551080

Abstract

This study aims to examine the characteristics of mediation in handling divorce cases in the Tanjung Balai Karimun Religious Court and to find out the effectiveness of mediation based on PERMA No.1 of 2016 concerning Procedure for Mediation in the Court of divorce cases in the Tanjung Balai Karimun Religious Court.

The research method used by the researcher is empirical legal research in which the research that the researcher does requires information and facts directly from the field or the person concerned. The type of data that the Researcher uses is primary data where the researcher must make observations and interviews to obtain data sources in the field. Data collection techniques by means of direct field studies by interview and observation. Where is this legal research with deductive qualitative analysis data.

Based on the results of this study, the results show that the characteristics of mediation, namely mediation, are negotiation based dispute resolution, reduce case accumulation, mediators are accepted and involved in negotiations with litigants, mediators are not involved in drafting and formulating proposals or agreement proposals. decision. Settlement of divorce cases through mediation in the Tanjung Balai Karimun Religious Court has not been effective because in terms of the law the lack of socialization of the regulation so that people do not know about the existence of regulations regarding mediation, and the lack of professional mediators in the Tanjung Balai Karimun Religious Court.

Keywords: Mediation, Law Enforcement, Legal Effectiveness