

Undergraduate Final Project
Science of Law Department
Odd Semester 2018/2019

THE APPLICATION OF DIVERSION IN THE STAGE OF INVESTIGATION OF CHILD OFFENDERS BASED ON LAW NUMBER
11 OF 2012 CONCERNING THE JUVENILE JUSTICE SYSTEM IN THE
LEGAL TERRITORY OF POLRESTA BARELANG

NPM: 1551101
FERDINAN LOIES HASLIM

Abstract

The implementation of this research was carried out with the aim of knowing the concept of the application of diversion by the investigators and the effectiveness of applying the diversion to children as perpetrators of crimes in accordance with The Law Number 11 of 2012 Concerning The Juvenile Justice System in the Bareleng Police Area.

This research was conducted by the author using empirical legal research methods because in this study the authors used primary data that the author obtained from the child investigator, especially in the Bareleng Police Unit through interviews and collecting data relating to cases of child crime that occurred in the region. Bareleng law then the author reviews it using the theory of legal effectiveness proposed by legal expert Soejano Soekanto for the application of diversions that have been carried out within the Bareleng police law area and the author uses secondary data in the form of several literature literature and legal books relating to the subject the problem that the author examined in writing this thesis.

Based on the results of the research that the author has done, it can be concluded that the application of the diversion mechanism by the child investigators during the investigation phase is already effective as reviewed based on the theory of legal effectiveness proposed by legal expert Soejano Soekanto.

Key Notes: Child Offender, Juvenile Justice System, Diversion