Abstract

Movies use cuts and transitions all the time, but people do not understand about the many different cuts and transitions used in movies. The purpose of this project is to inform people about cuts and transitions used in movies. Our proposed solution is to create a demonstration video using the MDLC method explaining the many different cuts and transitions. The video is then uploaded to YouTube and after interviewing some of the viewers we concluded that the video successfully informed people about the cuts and transition used in movies.
