ABSTRACT

Perfect Shoes Care is a company engaged in the field of services that professionally clean shoes that are not worth seeing, worn or dirty. Not only shoes but also wallets, bags, hats, suitcases and others that are dirty or stained can use the services provided by Perfect Shoes Care. During the period of approximately 3 (three) months when the author carried out practical work in the company of Perfect Shoes Care, the author has a goal whereby the author provided assistance related to deficiencies or problems faced by Perfect Shoes Care, especially in the field of law where Perfect Shoes Care collaboration with other parties must be implemented in a written agreement regarding the rights and obligations of the parties as outlined in the agreement that has been mutually agreed upon so as not to repeat and cause problems, therefore the author examines issues that arise now or will occur in the future related to the agreement desired by the parties.

In conducting research, there are generally two methods that can be used, namely empirical and normative research methods. For this study the author uses empirical legal research method because the author examined directly and made observations to the location to search, conduct interviews, collect and analyze document data in order to help the writer to draft an agreement that would be implemented in Perfect Shoes Care. After the draft agreement produced by the author is complete, the author will give the draft to the company and the company will accept the draft agreement for future use as one of the procedures in the company to form a partnership. Written agreements can provide legal certainty and legal protection for both parties. Apart from that, the parties can also know the legal relationship in cooperation, the rights and obligations that must be accounted for together based on good faith so that in the future there will be no parties that are mutually detrimental.
