SYSTEM

ABSTRACT

*Riady Azizir

The availability of infrastructure is one of the important things in the framework of developing economic development in a region. Infrastructure is also an important part in accelerating the process of national economic development. Infrastructure is believed to be one of the driving forces of economic growth. Infrastructure can be divided into seven groups, namely transportation infrastructure, such as roads and bridges, transportation service infrastructure, such as airports, terminals and ports, communication infrastructure, irrigation infrastructure, such as irrigation systems, water disposal, and waterways (rivers, water pipes) , Building infrastructure, Energy distribution and production infrastructure, Waste processing infrastructure The existence of infrastructure can facilitate economic activities in a country which will ultimately affect economic growth in the country.

Implementation of the Hiterland Regional Infrastructure Development Law in Bulang Kota District, Batam 2018 Fiscal Year is actually formed to realize the noble goal of fulfilling the needs of the community coupled with the achievement of financial benefits to increase Regional Original Income (PAD). Unfortunately, since the implementation of the Hiterland Regional Infrastructure Development Law in Bulang Kota District of Batam in the previous Budget Year 2018 to date, the issue of inefficiency still often befalls this regional government. As a result, the contribution to PAD was very minimal, especially the function of service to the community.
